

said Mrs. Milani. "When I finally asked him who he was and what he wanted, he just hissed: 'Stay back — this one is bought and paid for!' "I shouted at one of the girls to get security but it was too late. "The Devil wrestled a bright yellowish light from Mr. Sensini's dying body and dragged it through a black hole that just opened up there in the intensive care unit.

"The light screamed and cried while it was being dragged away. The hole closed up and disappeared as soon as they went through it. But the screams lingered on.

"Meanwhile, Mr. Sensini's heart had stopped. He was dead." Mrs. Milani and the other nurses, who wished to remain anonymous, were all treated for shock after the incident but were otherwise uninjured.

Father Fabio Deaglio, a Catholic priest who knew Sensini and his wife Lena for better than 20 years, said he was not surprised by the nurses' story: "Stefano Sensini gave his soul to Satan as a youth and never got it back.

"Satan always comes to claim what is his."

Blonde model turns baldy to battle beauty contests

Former model Ann Simonton would do almost anything to publicize the evils of beauty contests — even shave off her blonde tresses for the cause.

The curvy cutie, who once graced the cover of a Sports Illustrated swimsuit issue, shocked bystanders when she clipped off her curls during a demonstration against the Miss California Pageant in June.

"As a society we desperately need to look at what we're doing by having these women parade themselves around like objects," said Miss Simonton, 34, who was featured in a NEWS article several years ago. "Pageants are dehumanizing, unhealthy and dangerous. They encourage women to be viewed as a collection of body parts and that's the mindset behind rape."

Miss Simonton, who was a rape victim when she was 19, has spent most of the 15 years since the attack fighting against attitudes toward women which lead to crime.

In her demonstration she wore a chicken leg necklace to show pageants treat women like meat.

Dad tapes skydiving son's death plunge

Proud papa Charles Cheney was videotaping a jump of his skydiving son — and watched in horror as the boy plunged to his death.

Michael Cheney, 20, had trouble with his main parachute and released the reserve. But he was too close to the ground for it to open fully, said the sheriff's department in Osceola, Wis.

Man suffocates in bin of corn

Farm worker Marvin Schertz, 40, died a terrible death when a bin loaded with dried corn swallowed him up, suffocating him. The Owosso, Mich., man had tied a safety rope around himself while trying to unclog the bin's opening, but the line came untied and he sank into the grain, authorities said.
